CONTRIBUTORS / COLLABORATEURS

Verity Burgmann is a former professor of politics at the University of Melbourne, a fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences of Australia, and director of the Reason in Revolt project at www.reasoninrevolt.net.au. Her publications focus on left-wing ideologies, environmental politics, labour movements, and anti-corporate and other protest movements. Her books include Globalization and Labour in the Twenty-First Century (2016); Power, Profit and Protest (2003); Revolutionary Industrial Unionism (1995); and "In Our Time": Socialism and the Rise of Labor (1985).

Peter Campbell is an unrepentant Luxemburgist who, like Luxemburg, does not think Lenin was wrong about everything. One day, he hopes, leftists will realize that opposing globalization is a bit like opposing death and taxes.

Stefan Christoff is a media maker, community activist and artist living in Montréal. Stefan hosts Free City Radio, broadcasting weekly on CKUT 90.3fm, CJLO 1690am, CKUW 95.9fm in Winnipeg, CFRC 101.9fm in Kingston, Ontario and shared globally as a podcast (Spotify + ApplePodcasts). Stefan coordinates Musicians for Palestine and makes music with many people globally, including Rêves sonores, Sam Shalabi, Lori Goldston and Anarchist Mountains. Stefan is on the board of the Immigrant Workers Centre in Côte-Des-Neiges and works with Cinema Politica Network. Stefan is currently a bartender at Casa Del Popolo and is also a history student at Concordia University.

Doan Dani est stagiaire postdoctoral à l'Université de Montréal. Sa recherche porte sur la sacralisation de la politique ainsi que sur les relations entre les mouvements marxistes-léninistes canadiens et le Parti communiste albanais.

Caroline Durand enseigne l'histoire du Québec et du Canada français à l'Université Trent. En 2015, elle a publié l'ouvrage Nourrir la machine humaine : Nutrition et alimentation au Québec, 1860-1945.

Barry Eidlin is associate professor of sociology at McGill University. He is a scholar of working-class power and politics and the author of Labor and the Class Idea in the United States and Canada (2018).

Étudiant au doctorat en archivistique au département des sciences historiques de l'Université Laval, Simon-Olivier Gagnon s'intéresse au rapport entre l'exploitation des archives et les communautés. Son expérience au sein de diverses radios associatives (Québec, Territoires du Nord-Ouest, France et Écosse) l'a amené à s'intéresser aux archives de ces milieux. Durant les dernières années, il a présenté des contributions dans les revues Archives, Criminocorpus, Ethnologie, Jeu, Resonance - The journal of Sound and Culture, ainsi qu'aux Presses de l'Université Laval. Ces contributions sont accessibles via son carnet de recherche, tout comme les chroniques Remue-mémoires, présentées à l'émission Québec Réveille, sur les ondes de CKIA-FM 88.3fm.

Allan Greer is professor emeritus of history at McGill University. Specializing in the early history of Canada in the context of the Americas and the Atlantic World, Greer has published, among other works, Peasant, Lord and Merchant: Rural Society in Three Quebec Parishes, 1740–1840 (1985); Mohawk Saint: Catherine Tekakwitha and the Jesuits (2005); and Property and Dispossession: Natives, Empires and Land in Early Modern North America (2018).

Emanuel Guay is a postdoctoral researcher at Concordia University and Saint-Paul University. His research interests revolve around housing, ethnography and social movements.

Shannon Ikebe teaches at John Abbott College in Montréal, Québec. They hold a PhD in sociology from University of California, Berkeley.

Lauren Laframboise is a Vanier Scholar at the Centre for Oral History and Digital Storytelling in the Department of History at Concordia. Her PhD research explores the impacts of deindustrialization in the apparel industry in Montréal and New York City. She has worked on a variety of public history projects exploring labour and urban history, including museum exhibitions, online oral history platforms, walking tours, documentary films and radio. She is also a labour organizer with the Concordia Research and Education Workers' Union (crew–csn) and the Fédération nationale des enseignants et enseignantes du Québec (FNEEQ).

Rebecca M. Mills is a professor in the Department of Communication and Liberal Studies in the School of Interdisciplinary Studies and Community Services at Mohawk College. She is also the lead steward for OPSEU/SEFPO Local 240.

Doug Nesbitt is chair of the Kingston Workers' History Project, a founding editor of labour website Rankandfile.ca, and active in the Kingston labour movement. He is the Member Services Officer of the Queen's University Faculty Association, and board member at CFRC 101.9FM. He earned a PhD in History from Queen's University where he wrote a history of the Days of Action against the Common Sense Revolution in Ontario.

Jason Russell is a labour historian and professor in the College of Social and Behavioral Science at SUNY Empire State University. He is the author of Our Union: UAW/CAW Local 27 from 1950 to 1990 (2011) and Leading Progress: The Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada, 1920–2020 (2020).