

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

Gerard Bouchard teaches at the Université du Québec à Chicoutimi and is the chief investigator of the Société de Recherches sur les Populations (SOREP).

Frank Farrell, author of International Socialism and Australian Labour, teaches Australian History at the University of New South Wales.

Allan Greer, author of Peasant, Lord and Merchant: Rural Society in Three Quebec Parishes 1740-1840, teaches history at the University of Toronto.

Joy Parr, author of Labouring Children, teaches history at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and is now working on a comparative history of Hanover and Paris, Ont.

Marilyn Porter, author of Home, Work and Class Consciousness, teaches sociology at Memorial University of Newfoundland, St. John's Nfld.

Eric Sager, a member of Memorial University's Maritime History Group, teaches labour history at the University of Victoria, Victoria, B.C.

Joan Sangster teaches at Trent University, Peterborough, Ont. and has previously published articles in Labour/Le Travail, polyphony, and in Lectures in Canadian Labour and Working-Class History.

Jeremy Webber has recently received LL.B. and B.C.L. degrees from the Faculty of Law, McGill University. He is now articling with the Vancouver firm of McAlpine & Hordo.