

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

- J.F. Conway teaches Sociology at the University of Regina and is on the executive of the Association for Canadian Studies.
- June Corman is an Assistant Professor at Brock University, St. Catherines, Ontario.
- Terry Crowley is a member of the History Department at the University of Guelph. His publications include Louisbourg, Atlantic Fortress and Seaport, and Agnes Macphail and the Politics of Equality.
- Michael Lonardo is the Social Sciences Librarian in the Queen Elizabeth II Library at Memorial University.
- Meg Luxton is a Professor at York University, Toronto, Ontario.
- Peyton V. Lyon is a retired Professor of Political Science, Carleton University.
- Lynne Marks is completing her doctorate in history at York University. She has published articles on working class women in the Salvation Army and on the history of women and education.
- Don McGillivray teaches at the College of Cape Breton and has published many articles on the labour history of that island.
- Ian McKay teaches history at Queen's and is an expert on Nova Scotia coal mining history.
- H.V. Nelles is a member of the York University History Department and has published extensively in Canadian business history.
- Ellen L. Ramsay teaches at York University.
- Bob Russell is an Associate Professor in the Sociology Department at the University of Saskatchewan. Most recent among his publications is Back to Work? Labour, State and Industrial Relations in Canada, Toronto: 1990.
- Robert Shenton teaches African history at Queen's University.
- Bruce Spencer has recently moved from Leeds University to Athabasca and is the author of Remaking the Working Class?
- Robert Sweeny, responsable des titres français de notre bibliographie, enseigne l'histoire québécoise à l'Université Memorial.
- Jeremy Webber teaches in the Faculty of Law, McGill University.