

CONTRIBUTORS / COLLABORATEURS

Lucie Bettez's interest in labour relations and women's studies is a result of a father's long involvement as a union representative and a strong mother as a role model. She is currently pursuing a master degree in applied history at Université du Québec à Montréal.

Richard Fry is a graduate student at Wayne State University in Detroit. He is currently completing his Ph.D. dissertation, "A Conflict of Interests: The Struggle Over Occupational Health and Safety in America's Coal Mines, 1969."

Guy Gaudreau is a Professor at Laurentian University teaching social history. His current research includes mining history in Québec and Ontario, and cultural history.

Brian Green is a trade union staff person in British Columbia, who has worked as an elected executive member or staffer for the United Farm Workers of America (AFL-CIO), the Telecommunications Workers' Union, and numerous academic staff unions. Currently he is completing a Ph.D. in Sociology. Green's primary area of research is class theory and class relations within working class organizations.

Kurt Korneski is a postdoctoral fellow at Memorial University's Institute for Social and Economic Research. He is currently developing a comparative study of nationalism in British Colonies of settlement in the late 19th and early 20th Centuries.

Michael Lonardo is Social Sciences Librarian in the Queen Elizabeth II Library, Memorial University of Newfoundland.

Andrew Parnaby is an associate professor of history at Cape Breton University. He is the author of Citizen Docker: Making a New Deal on the Vancouver Waterfront, 1919-1939 (Toronto 2008).

Jason Russell is a Ph.D student in the Department of History at York University. He is also an instructor at SUNY – Empire State College, and a local activist in the Communications, Energy, and Paperworkers Union.

Larry Savage is an Assistant Professor of Labour Studies and Political Science at Brock University.

Charles W. Smith is completing his Ph.D. in the Department of Political Science at York University. His doctoral research examines the politics of the Ontario Labour Relations Act in the post-war period.

Robert C.H. Sweeny, responsable des titres français de notre bibliographie, est professeur titulaire d'histoire à l'Université Memorial de Terre-Neuve.

Cynthia Wright teaches at York University, Toronto. Along with Bridget Anderson and Nandita Sharma, she is guest-editing a special issue on the politics of open borders for Refuge.